

Maxime Rwendeye

He holds a Master in International Law and Human Rights, and a Bachelor of Arts degree in History and several certificates in human rights. He boasts a deep understanding of SGBV in Africa and globally, and is committed to bringing about change in the lives of vulnerable women in situations of peace and conflict, by providing expert advice and consultancy in training and capacity building as well as in policy research and analysis for effective judicial action, advocacy and public campaigning. He has been part of CIDRA Team for the last 5 years, and has contributed to a lot.

He has over 10 years' experience (Rwanda, Mali, Central Africa Republic) of successful national, pan African and global policy research, advocacy and campaigning experience on a wide range of GENDER development policies and practices, and women's rights and empowerment.

Presently, He is a consultant in gender training, SGBV and governance, providing expert advice.

www.cidragroup.com